Background

SPE is a worldwide, individual-member organization serving managers, engineers, scientists, and other professionals in the E&P segments of the oil and gas industry.

Mission

To collect, disseminate and exchange technical knowledge concerning the exploration, development and production of oil and gas resources, and related technologies for the public benefit; and to provide opportunities for professionals to enhance their technical and professional competence.

Major Technical Disciplines

Upstream oil and gas operations, including Drilling and Completions; Health, Safety, Security, and Social Responsibility; Management and Information; Production and Operations; Projects, Facilities and Construction; and Reservoir Description and Dynamics.

Membership

More than 79,000 members in 117 countries participate in 170 sections and 179 student chapters. SPE's membership includes more than 18,600 student members.

Resources
